Belts – Order form/guide

Your Name:

Each belt we make is a bespoke, one-off item, designed, manufactured, and finished to each customer's individual requirements. This form/guide is to assist you in selecting the from the most frequently used options available. If your exact requirements aren't met here, please contact us and we shall do our best to create your perfect accessory.

Colour (those shown are approximate):

Our leather is dyed by hand using Pro-dyes (formerly known as oil-based dyes). These high-quality dyes use liquid pigments that soak into the leather, giving a deep, permanent finish, with little or no "rub-off".

For other colours (e.g. white), we may have to use acrylic dye, and due to the differences in applying and finishing these, it may impact on cost, so please contact us for more information.

	Mahogany: Classic mahogany: a rich reddish brown colour – like a piece of Georgian furniture!	<input type="radio"/> Mahogany
	English Bridle: A paler, more orange brown – another traditional leather shade.	<input type="radio"/> English Bridle
	Black: Another classic colour – the new black!	<input type="radio"/> Black

Length

The "length" of a belt is not the total length from end-to-end! The length we require is from the buckle turn (where the belt wraps over the buckle) to the hole that is most frequently used, which will be the centre hole. Our belts normally have five holes, each 1 inch (25mm) apart, thus giving two inches adjustment either side of the length ordered, to accommodate variations in clothing thickness, and, perhaps, variations in diet!

The most accurate way to get this measurement is to take an existing belt that the wearer has, and take this measurement as shown above, but to the most frequently used hole (which may not be the middle one as shown above).

If this is not possible, measure the waist of the wearer at the level the belt will be worn, against the skin – i.e. not over clothing. Add 2 inches (50mm) to this, and that should give a realistic approximation of the required belt length.

Finally, if that is not possible either, measure the waist while the wearer is wearing clothing typical of that they will wear with the belt: if they wear jeans, measure with jeans on, if they wear chinos, measure with chinos, if they always wear their shirt and sweatshirt tucked into their jeans (hey – I’m a leatherworker, not the fashion police!), then measure that.

DO NOT GUESS THE BELT LENGTH BASED ON THE CLOTHING SIZE! “32 inch waist jeans” is very unlikely to mean that that is even close to the belt size!

Buckle

Unless otherwise requested your belt will be supplied with a solid brass polished buckle in the same design as those pictured in the photos showing the colours of leather.

Other buckles may be available, but may affect the price of the belt, and may result in a delay to your delivery. Contact us for more information.

Width

Our standard belt-width is 1¼ inches (approximately 32mm) wide. Should you require another width (e.g. 1 inch (25mm)), contact us to discuss your requirements.

Buckle Attachment

Rear of a hand-stitched belt

We normally hand-stitch our buckles, using a traditional saddle-stitch, as shown in the photos, but alternative methods are available. If you want the buckle to be permanently mounted to the belt, stitching is the best, but rivets can also be used on request.

Press-studs on a buckle turn (for a Western-style buckle)

If you want to be able to remove the buckle so it can be used on another belt (or belts), or you have your own buckle already and require a new (or replacement) belt, we can use Chigago screws, or press-studs (pop-fasteners).
